

Social media Branding

EIT Food's 2023 flagship conference will be the last before institutional change at European level in 2024. It provides a unique opportunity for the largest food community in the world to inspire lawmakers, by sharing evidence-based insights, business cases, and concrete recommendations on how, together, we can make change happen to transform our food systems. With its extensive track record of infusing innovation in the ecosystem, accelerating its take up and adoption from farmers to consumers, and providing frequent unique feedback to decision makers, the EIT Food Partnership can once again help shape the more sustainable, resilient and transparent system we need. The full agenda can be found here.

Ahead of the event, if you wish to communicate about the event on Twitter or LinkedIn, this document will help you by providing the brand as well as the hashtags and handles to use.
